

Cullen and Dykman Announces Comprehensive Practice for Startups and Emerging Companies

July 10, 2023

Cullen and Dykman LLP, a rapidly growing northeast regional law firm, is thrilled to announce the launch of its new practice dedicated to providing comprehensive support and guidance to startups and emerging companies. With an existing wealth of experience in entity structure, governance, early stage financing, taxation and employment, the firm is poised to empower startups on their journey to long-term success. The practice will be led by Partners Charles F. Gergel and Ilana T. Pearl.

Cullen and Dykman's attorneys offer extensive experience and guidance in navigating diverse financing structures, such as convertible instruments, early series equity rounds and Regulation D offerings. Often, legal services encompass advising on securities law compliance, exploring instrument and investor options, drafting essential agreements, and managing SEC filings. Recognizing the distinct challenges encountered by emerging companies, our commitment lies in delivering personalized counsel tailored to assist our clients in achieving successful financing outcomes.

"We are excited to launch our new practice for Startups and Emerging Companies," said Christopher H. Palmer, Managing Partner of Cullen and Dykman. "With our deep understanding of the needs and objectives of early-stage investors, we are confident in our ability to guide and support startups on their journey to growth and success."

Practice Contact Ilana T. Pearl added, "Everyone at Cullen and Dykman LLP is thrilled to launch this new practice group, enabling us to leverage the firm's existing platform effectively and provide enhanced services to our entrepreneur and venture capital clients."

Cullen and Dykman LLP's commitment to providing exceptional legal services and its dedication to supporting startups and emerging companies makes this new practice a valuable addition to its portfolio.
