Cullen and Dykman Obtains $995,000 Settlement in a Dental Malpractice Case for Failure to Properly Treat a Fractured Mandible

January 29, 2019

Cullen and Dykman Partner Timothy Flanagan obtained a $995,000 settlement in a malpractice case involving a failure to properly treat a fractured mandible. The claims included the failure to appropriately treat the initial fracture, the failure to properly diagnose and treat an ensuing infection, the failure to perform proper corrective surgery, and the failure to obtain the patient's informed consent. The informed consent claim involved an allegedly forged consent form for the defendant's attempt to replace the failed mini-plate originally used to fixate the fracture.
