Daniel Parise is an associate in the Corporate department. He focuses his practice on higher education, labor and employment, mergers and acquisitions, construction, and environmental matters.

Prior to joining the firm, Daniel provided comprehensive legal guidance to school districts in Nassau and Suffolk County on issues involving policy drafting and implementation, staff and student affairs, compliance with Federal and State laws for financial aid purposes, construction and energy savings contracts, and lease-purchase agreements. He also assisted in negotiating and executing asset purchase agreements for the sale of various local businesses.

Daniel graduated from SUNY Old Westbury, magna cum laude, in 2018 and obtained his doctorate from Touro College Jacob D. Fuchsberg Law Center, magna cum laude, in 2022 where he served as the Issue Editor for Touro's Law Review. He also volunteered at Suffolk County Legal Aid Society's Breaking Barriers program where he assisted clients in obtaining Certificates of Relief from Disabilities and Certificates of Good Conduct.
