

Jennifer A. McLaughlin Named Co-Chair of Cullen and Dykman's Higher Education Practice Group

December 1, 2022

Garden City – Jennifer A. McLaughlin has recently been named Co-Chair of Cullen and Dykman's Higher Education practice group. She will be leading the practice area with Co-Chair Dina L. Vespia.

Jennifer regularly advises colleges and universities with respect to policy development and implementation, disability accommodation issues, employment law issues, intellectual property matters as well as internal and external investigations. She litigates cases for colleges and universities commenced under federal and state statutes including proceedings that arise under Article 78 of the New York Civil Practice Laws and Rules. Jennifer also advises colleges and universities on Title IX matters, investigations and regularly serves as a TIX hearing panelist. She also served as Associate Counsel for a large private University where she provided counsel to senior administrators on a full range of legal and compliance matters, as well as representation of the University in labor and employment arbitration and litigation.

Cullen and Dykman's Managing Partner Christopher H. Palmer stated, "Our higher education practice group is one of the most renown and fastest growing in the region, led by both Jen and Dina, who have vast experience in resolving the most complex challenges confronting colleges and universities. Having Jen as Co-Chair is especially critical to assisting our clients as she has a valuable dual perspective, having also served as in-house counsel at a major local university. Our clients trust Cullen and Dykman to handle their many operational and legal needs, allowing them to focus on their educational mission."

Fellow Co-Chair Dina Vespia noted, "I could not be more excited to team up with a leader like Jen. Her expertise in the higher education space is a tremendous benefit to clients and our growing practice."

Partner Jennifer A. McLaughlin added, "I look forward to my continued work with Dina and the rest of the higher education team to further advance our clients' shared goal of student success."
