

Partner Dina Vespia Named Co-Chair of Cullen and Dykman's Higher Education Practice Group

July 1, 2022

Garden City – July 1, 2022 – Dina Vespia, a partner in Cullen and Dykman LLP's Corporate Department, has recently been named Co-Chair of the firm's Higher Education practice group. She will be leading the practice area with Co-Chair James Ryan.

Dina provides legal advice and counsel to colleges and universities, secondary schools, and other not-for-profit organizations on a wide variety of legal matters, including state and federal regulatory compliance, governance issues, student affairs, accreditation, academic affairs, contracts, and other general corporate matters. She works closely with clients' executive leadership teams and boards to address legal considerations that arise in the context of the clients' regular day-to-day operations, and has particular experience advising institutions that are experiencing financial challenges to navigate the complex regulatory landscape as they evaluate various strategic options to strengthen their financial condition and long-term sustainability.

Cullen and Dykman's Managing Partner Christopher H. Palmer stated, "Dina has played a vital role in the success of our Higher Education practice group, which will continue to thrive under her oversight and guidance. She consistently earns the confidence of our clients through her legal acumen, extensive industry knowledge, and strong leadership. Additionally, Dina will continue to serve as Chair of Cullen and Dykman's Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion Committee, ensuring the firm's values, such as collaboration, inclusivity, and innovation, underpin all that we do."

Dina added, "The higher education landscape is rapidly changing. Every day, our college and university clients face new challenges, not the least of which is finding effective ways to educate students during a global pandemic." She continued by saying, "Now more than ever, I'm excited to play a key role in our Higher Education practice group to support these institutions so they can focus on their critical missions—imparting knowledge and providing opportunities that shape future generations."
