

Richard Coppola Successfully Obtained Summary Judgment Dismissing All Claims Filed Against Religious Order Alleging Violations of the Trafficking Victims Protection Reauthorization Act

April 3, 2023

Richard Coppola, a partner in the firm's Commercial Litigation Department, successfully obtained summary judgment and a dismissal of an action filed in the Southern District of New York in 2020. In a detailed and well-reasoned thirty-one page Opinion and Order, the Court dismissed all claims alleging enticement into slavery, forced labor, and document servitude. Prior to the motion, Cullen and Dykman took plaintiff's deposition in person on two separate occasions. The Court frequently cited plaintiff's admissions and how the testimony contradicted the allegations in the Complaint. The fact that plaintiff was allowed to and, in fact, did travel freely with her passport was persuasive for the Court.
