Sarmili Saha is an associate in the firm's Energy, Renewables and Utilities department. She represents regulated Energy, Renewables and Utilities clients in a variety of matters before state public utility commissions and federal agencies, as well as in federal and state court. Sarmili counsels clients on regulatory compliance, mergers and acquisitions, asset sales, licensing proceedings, prudence matters, environmental and energy matters, risk minimization, litigation avoidance, and litigation management. She also represents clients in obtaining state regulatory approval for financings and restructurings. Her practice also includes representing clients in complex rate proceedings and matters related to interconnection, energy efficiency, and renewable energy.
