

Transportation Liability

The attorneys in our general liability, tort, and insurance defense department have extensive experience defending corporations, individual vehicle owners and drivers of commercial and personal vehicles against personal injury and wrongful death claims. We have successfully represented clients in cases involving all types of privately-owned vehicle and public transportation collisions, in many cases obtaining dismissal prior to or during trial based on liability or threshold grounds.

Experienced Defense Counsel for Transportation Accident Litigation

In transportation liability cases, our attorneys work closely with investigators, accident reconstruction experts, and expert witnesses in order to achieve positive results for our clients. We have decades of experience dealing with all matters related to insurance coverage and liability, and we have amassed a substantial record of securing favorable outcomes both in and out of court. This includes defending clients in first-party and third-party insurance coverage matters, as well as protecting the financial interests of corporations in cases of direct and vicarious liability.

We routinely defend clients against liability claims arising out of:

- Two-vehicle accidents
- Multi-vehicle collisions
- Tractor-trailer and other large truck accidents
- Utility and word truck accidents
- Commercial van and bus accidents
- Pedestrian and bicycle accidents
- Accidents involving public transportation vehicles

Aggressive plaintiffs' attorneys will vigorously pursue personal injury and wrongful death claims arising out of transportation accidents. Our attorneys take an equally aggressive approach to defense, utilizing the available evidence (or lack thereof) to drive favorable results. If we see an opportunity for a favorable pre-trial result, we will pursue it in order to minimize the time and expense involved in the case. If the only sound option is to go to trial, our lawyers will be fully prepared to present a comprehensive defense to the judge or jury.